Your Christmas Perspective

by Nathan Reeves

Most events in life are perceived differently by different people. If I mentioned a current event to twenty people, I'd probably get twenty different perspectives. Take the World Series, for instance—the Dodgers beat the Blue Jays. One person might be thrilled, another might be severely disappointed, another might not care, and yet another might say, "I thought the Philadelphia Eagles won the World Series!"

Now what if I mentioned Christmas? What does Christmas mean to you? If you really think it through, it may mean one or more of many different things. It might mean fun family traditions that have been passed down through the years. It might be a time to show someone how much you really love them by giving them gifts. It might bring many fond memories through social gatherings. Or it might just bring much-needed vacation time to spend with your family.

While Christmas may take on many different perspectives, the perspectives do not change the historical significance (just like the fact that the Dodgers won the World Series doesn't change based on your perspective). Christmas in America is a time our nation originally set aside to celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ. While we may not know the exact date He was born, we still celebrate the fact that He was born on earth. Jesus was God's perfect Son who humbled Himself by coming down to earth as a babe and eventually dying for the sins of the world so we might go to heaven. I cannot explain why, but it's amazingly true!

Christmas represents not only a historical fact, but also great eternal significance. The Bible says what you do with Jesus will determine where you spend eternity. If you trust Him as your Savior, He will take you to heaven the day life on this earth ends for you. Has there been a specific time that you have trusted Jesus? I hope so. If you have not, right now realize you are a sinner, and call upon Jesus to save you from your sin. Christ died for all mankind, and He wants you to be in heaven one day with Him. If you are already saved, realize His love, and make Christ the focal point of this Christmas.

This year, let Christmas be important to you for the right reason.
