Jack of All Trades (Part 2)

by Nathan Reeves

BRCA is not a “Jack of All Trades” school. We do not dabble in what we can only pretend to be good at. We believe knowledge and character are very important to God, and, therefore, we focus on these two areas. As mentioned last month, knowledge is both biblical and academic. The Bible is taught and applied throughout each day at BRCA, and our skilled teachers know how to use the most rigorous curriculum written – Abeka. Our students receive an excellent education. But this month, we will look at what might separate us from other academically strong schools – our Character Development Program.

At BRCA, we define character as doing what’s right, even when it’s hard. We aim to instill in our students a desire to do the right thing (if everyone is looking or if no one is), and “right” is dictated by the principles outlined in the Bible. We have chosen nine character traits to teach throughout the year – one per month and then built upon. These traits are modeled, taught, and rewarded consistently at BRCA.

While there are more character traits that will be taught, we narrowed it down to the most important nine. In September, we taught OBEDIENCE. Obedience is action brought about by submission to authority and simply involves following directions and rules immediately, completely, and happily. October’s trait was RESPECT – to honor or to have consideration for. We hope to instill manners like speaking to adults when spoken to (with eye contact), saying “Yes, ma’am”, not interrupting, proper table manners, and saying “Pardon me” instead of “What?” or “Huh?”, to name a few. THANKFULNESS is outwardly expressing gratefulness. Students should say “Thank you” every time they are given something and “No, thank you” when they do not take it. INTEGRITY would include telling the truth even if facing trouble, not exaggerating to friends, and obeying the spirit of the law (not just the letter). RESPONSIBILITY is being accountable for your actions and fulfilling your duties (e.g., do what you say, don’t make excuses, make work a priority, etc.). Making right choices is DISCERNMENT, and involves asking God to help you choose wisely when it comes to situations such as when the teacher is out of the room or when something does not go your way. DILIGENCE includes being thorough in classwork, homework, and room jobs. Showing KINDNESS involves giving compliments to others, playing with someone you do not normally play with, and greeting classroom guests. And finally, SERVICE means selflessly helping others. Students should be constantly offering help to teachers and other students. This is the last one because after years of training, service is the direction that teenagers should be taught to go.

It may take several years before these traits become our students’ traits, but by God’s grace, in conjunction with each parent, it can happen. The desire to do right must be planted and grown from the time your child is young and throughout adolescence. Our goal for training character is to produce young people who desire to do right on their own by obeying God’s principles.

Book of the Month by Nathan Reeves

Battle for the American Mind by Pete Hegseth (Secretary of War)

Main Idea: American progressives (liberals) of the late 19th & early 20th centuries saw education as a vehicle to change society, one child's mind at a time. Before you ever consider putting your child in a public school, please read this book!

Favorite Quote: In defense of using the public school system to rid America of its Christian paideia, Charles Potter said, "What can theistic Sunday School, meeting for an hour once a week, do to stem the tide of a five day program of humanistic teaching?"

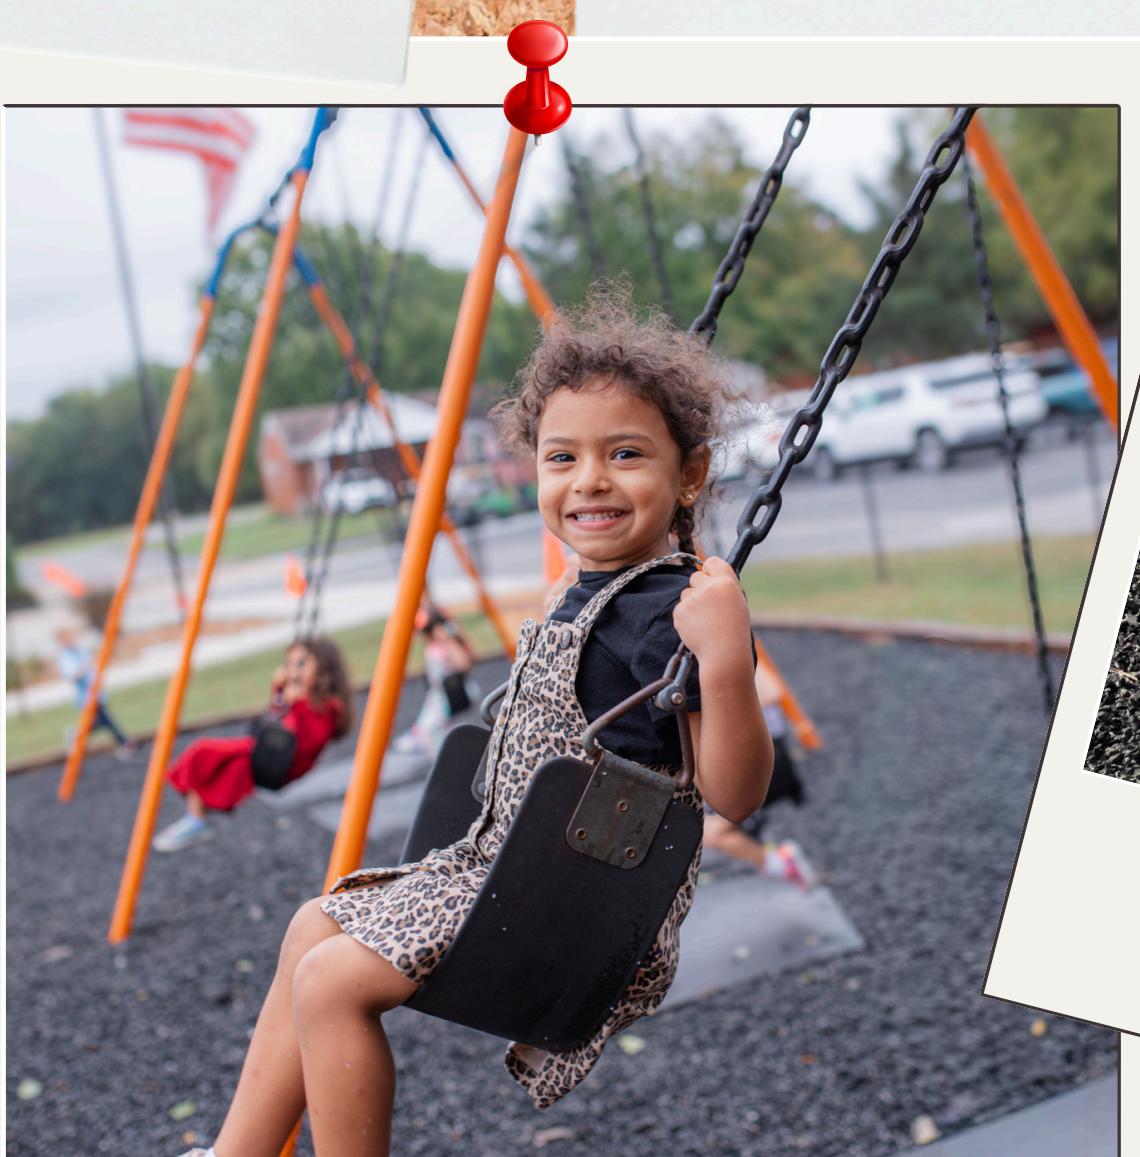

And as always, you are more than welcome to borrow this book from me.
